“ I remember the first time we met. I was shoveling snow outside and you show up with your snow blower to save the day . My first words to you were "Merry Christmas, thanks for coming by to help". You had such a positive attitude, "What are neighbors for" you said. That's how our friendship started, with a random act of kindness.

Whenever we were both outside you would always take the time to come over and chat. It was something I expected whenever I mowed the lawn or was weeding the yard. I remember how excited you were to talk about your kids. What new and exciting thing your son was doing, and how talented he is at fixing cars, or how proud you were of your daughters athletic ability and her going to college after she graduated. You were always so optimistic about things especially when times were rough with your health.

I'm going to miss swinging by to see what new thing you were doing to your yard, or hearing you talk about how much you hated mowing your lawn. I'm going to miss the little projects I could help you with even though you knew I was just a computer nerd that had a rough time with a hammer.

Till the end you were so considerate and thought of others. We were so happy when you randomly showed up a week ago with Purple Pansies. I really cherish those flowers, the meaning behind them makes them even more beautiful.

Believe it or not, I learned something from you Gary. Be there for the ones around you, and help them without the thought of ever getting something back in return. This is how I will honor our friendship, by carrying this on with others.

Rest in peace my friend, till we meet again some day.

“ Gary was always busy with his " projects " around his house. But if anyone needed any help or an extra hand he was there for them he was that kind of a guy.

He cared for people, he was a guy with a good heart

“ I don't even know where to begin. I was 12 when I first ran into you.....you were a safety and for some reason you spat on the back of my coat. Then later you apologized. LOL. Well then I introduced you to Angela when we bowled together. You were a HUGE part of our family. You definitely will be missed and you were so loved by so many. Now you can parry with my Mom and Your Aunt Carol. You two please have a party for all time. Love you brother!
